

ASH 3930 Studies in Asian History: Contemporary Asia

Offered synchronously Tuesday/ Thursday 4.50-6.05pm

Are you interested in working on key issues in contemporary Asia? Do you want to know the background to current flashpoints? Join ASH3930 Contemporary Asia in spring 2021!

- ✓ Over the course of the semester, you will be collaborating as part of a research team (3-4 individuals) to produce and present briefs covering some of the breaking issues taking place in Asia today.
- ✓ This research, analysis, and writing will broaden and deepen your understanding of the complex issues taking place in Asia today as they relate to foreign policy, human rights, political economy, and national security.
- ✓ This course is designed to hone your research, analysis, communication, critical thinking, collaboration, organizational and time management skills.

Looking forward to working with you in the spring semester!

Dr. Claudia Liebeskind