

The grad seminar will focus on gender and sexuality in the medieval and early modern Mediterranean. Readings will touch on themes like women and the law, honor and violence, gender and religious authority, and gender and the production of knowledge, especially medical knowledge. Readings will look at Christian, Jewish and Muslim communities in places like Italy, Iberia, and Egypt. Students will have the freedom to craft a final paper project that is useful for them.